SLAVERY CLAIM AGAINST THE U.S. CONGRESS AND THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES

11-25-2019

SUBJECT MATTER OF THIS CLAIM

The people for The United States of America hereby claim that the U.S. Congress created a legal box wherein the persons of the people for The United States of America have been placed in perpetual inhabitant status evidenced by the fact that citizen status cannot be obtained in any state or State.

STANDING OF THIS CLAIM

RECOGNITION

The Law of Nations as recognized by the United States wherein does it read: Section 8: To define and punish Piracies and Felonies committed on the high Seas, and Offenses against the Law of Nations. Each state or State is subject to the Law of Nations.

Quote: Law of Nations- chapter XIX
Of our Native Country, and several Things that relate to it.

The whole of the countries possessed by a nation and subject to its laws, forms, as we have already said, its territory, and is the common country of all the individuals of the nation. We have been obliged to anticipate the definition of the term, native country (§122), because our subject led us to treat of the love of our country,—a virtue so excellent and so necessary in a state. Supposing then this definition already known, it remains that we should explain several things that have a relation to this subject, and answer the questions that naturally arise from it. The citizens are the members of the civil society: bound to this society by certain duties, and subject to its authority, they equally participate in its advantages. The natives, or natural-born citizens, are those born in the country, of parents who are citizens. As the society cannot exist and perpetuate itself otherwise than by the children of the citizens, those children naturally follow the condition of their fathers, and succeed to all their rights. The society is supposed to desire this, in consequence of what it owes to its own preservation; and it is presumed, as matter of course, that each citizen, on entering into society, reserves to his children the right of becoming members of it. The country of the fathers is therefore that of the children; and these become true citizens merely by their tacit consent. We shall soon see, whether, on their coming to the years of discretion, they may renounce their right, and what they owe to the society in which they were born. I say, that, in order to be of the country, it is necessary that a person be born of a father who is a citizen; for if he is born there of a foreigner, it will be only the place of his birth, and not his country.

§213. Inhabitants.

The inhabitants, as distinguished from citizens, are foreigners, who are permitted to settle and stay in the country. Bound to the society by their residence, they are subject to the laws of the state, while they reside in it; and they are obliged to defend it, because it grants them protection, though they do not participate in all the rights of citizens. They enjoy only the advantages which the law or custom gives them. The perpetual inhabitants are those who have received the right of perpetual residence. These are a kind of citizens of an inferior order, and are united to the society, without participating in all its advantages. Their children follow the condition of their fathers; and as the state has given to these the right of perpetual residence, their right passes to their posterity. End quote

NARRATIVE

The world can see that this part of the Law of Nations deals with the terms that the U.S. congress uses every day to identify those that are born within the States of the Union. There is a distinction between a citizen and a resident wherein both cannot exist at the same time. The only status offered at this point in time is a resident of a state or State and there is no such thing as a U.S. citizen certificate to prove anyone is a U.S. citizen, so anyone can only assume that there is no such status as a U.S. citizen because there was no social compact that created it.

An inhabitant is a foreigner and perpetually remains a resident of any state or State. Therefore nothing more than stateless, a term used to describe a slave. Nothing more than property that is in need of permission to travel or go to the store.

PROPERTY OWNERSHIP

Property ownership is non-existent within the U.S. congress because all property is owned by the Northern trust corporation operated by lawyers so the slaves have no right to own property.

Government of The United States of America

A number of human beings assembled and signed a social compact and formed a working Government to solve the aforementioned problems caused by the indifference of the U.S. congress. The Government of The United States of America is bombarded with petty little claims by lawyers over and over thereby sending out the Bar Associations private police force for no other reason but to annoy. Judges remain incompetent because none of them have read the Law of Nations. All attempt to fill their own pockets on a daily basis wherein an honest judge is very rare and has not yet been found within the U.S. congress.

NON-FUNCTIONING

The U.S. congress never functioned as any form of a republic and this Government fully expects that this claim will go unanswered because it is a claim from property in its eyes and not human beings. The U.S. congress lives lavishly off of its slaves and sends its slaves to die in wars every day. It creates new killing machines on a monthly basis all paid from the labor of its slaves. The practice of communist ideology of the U.S. congress is self-evident. The U.S. congress finds ways every day to take more and more privileges away from what it sees as its property.

INTERNATIONAL CLAIM AGAINST THE U.S. CONGRESS

The people for The United States of America hereby lodge this claim into the International Record against the U.S. congress for the crime of slavery in all of its forms.
